

It's our Year to Party

10th Annual BC Cultural Crawl

Media Release
January 13, 2011

New Westminster, BC -- It's British Columbia's year to party. With BC's Spirit Festival kicking off in a few short weeks, Parks Canada's 100th anniversary and the City of Vancouver's 125th birthday, 2011 not only marks one year since we welcomed the world to the Winter Olympics but also commemorates the 10th annual BC Cultural Crawl. Launched as a modest BC Day celebration ten years ago, the BC Cultural Crawl has grown into a cornerstone provincial event spanning the entire month of August.

The 2011 Crawl already promises to include more events and communities than ever before. It's time to start thinking about how you'll participate. Perhaps you'll plan a small outdoor arts festival in your town, host an intimate concert in your living room, or take a trip to the north of the province like you've always meant to. Perhaps your arts organization will take the lead in your city and organize a weekend-long cultural crawl, or you'll pack up your family and brave the journey to breathtaking shores of Haida Gwaii.

However you plan to explore British Columbia this summer, the BC Cultural Crawl team is here to guide you along the way. By logging on to bcculturalcrawl.com you'll have access to our Cultural Crawl Toolkit, a day-by-day list of festivals and events, and a comprehensive list of all participating BC communities. You will also find suggested community cultural crawls, studio tours and itineraries for week-long adventures and featured afternoon escapes.

British Columbia, it's our time to party!
